We believe in the crucial role of education in helping Syria's younger generations to attain a brighter and more peaceful future. Therefore, Rethink Rebuild Society in collaboration with Syria Relief Charity have established a school in Alsahara village, north of Syria where no education has been provided for years. The school has accommodated more than 500 pupils and provided them with education and psychological support since September 2014. Despite the harm they have suffered, these Syrian children still have courage and determination to build better lives.
